Bank moves to support sterling

STERLING yesterday sank to its lowest against the D-Mark since December, at one stage falling to DM2.8720, before recovering to close in London at DM2.8750.

It appears increasingly unlikely that the UK currency could join the narrow 2.25 per cent band of the ERM before next month's Maastricht sum-

"That would imply a pound D-Mark rate of 2.8830, and we are already below that figure, says Mr Christian Dunis of Chemical Bank Chancellor Norman Lamont's comments, that the UK would "do whatever was necesto support sterling up by discreet intervention from the Bank of England. So discreet, in fact, that many of central bank action in the face of a fading pound.

The severe pressure on sterling is prompting a strange turnround in the approach to the UK currency. Where once traders were talking of rate cuts, speculation over a reluctant increase is growing. The majority do not take such talk seriously, however, with a general election just around the Pressure on sterling from a strong D-Mark is likely to con-

The overhang of Bundesbank speculation seemed to add extra pressure on the US

However, the dollar took brief respite at the expense of the D-Mark from a variety of rumours. They included specu-lation out of the Soviet Union that Russia planned to put President Mikhail Gorbachev on trial and hints that the Bundesbank had been checking dollar/D-Mark prices. At the end of the day in London, the dollar was down from DM1.6070 to DM1.6025. The Lira steadled yesterday, closing at DM755.84/94. However, dealers were not any more confident about the Lira, despite an increase in repo

THE BANK of England took the steam out of the UK money markets by injecting virtually all the liquidity the market needed before noon. "That was the end of operations as far as we were concerned," said one trader from a leading discount house. The central bank had forecast a shortage of £750m, and in early trading took bills worth £643m at 10% per cent. December short sterling edged only marginally higher from its opening of 89.48 to

UK clearing bank base lending rate from September 4, 1991

89.51, implying that UK interest rates were unlikely to fall from the current 10.5 per cent. Short money held steady yesterday. One month stood at 10% 1/2, and six months out, the rate was 104 %. The key three month interbank rate was firm at 10 7. Overnight money eased slightly from Monday's 10%-104 to yesterday's 101/2-78. The sterling trade weighted index weakened slightly from 91.3 to 91.11. The decline was mainly due to a stronger D-Mark, boosted by expectations of an interest rate rise in Germany and the dollar's tumble.

Bank in early action Sterling markets will remain nervous until Germany comes out for or against an interest rate rise. Sterling is trading at the bottom of the ERM grid. The Bundesbank injected NEW YORK DM3.5bn liquidity in the German money market > securities repurchase tenders worth DM31bn. Some dealers saw this as a sign that the Bundesbank sought to dampen speculation over a rates increase ahead of council meeting on Thursday. Thursday.

Others said, however, that the extra liquidity was needed

Date of the control of the to offset the impact of November tax payments, expected to drain funds from the market later this week.

German call money was marginally above Monday's levels of 8.95/9.00, rising to 9.00/ 05. "The Bundesbank is determined to keep call money near the 9 per cent mark," said one dealer. In the US, the Federal Reserve added temporary liquidity to the banking system through $1.5bn worth of customer repurchase agreements. Federal funds traded at the 4% target during the operation. Economists said they expected the Fed to add funds in view of a need for additional reserves during the remainder period.

Dow resumes slide after Monday's brief recovery

Wall Street

US equities resumed their downward course after Monday's brief rally, with share prices falling sharply across the board in heavy trading yesterday morning, writes Patrick Harverson in New York.

By 1 pm the Dow Jones Industrial Average was down 56.80 at 2,915.92, near its lows for the day. The more broadly based Standard & Poor's was also markedly lower at midsession, down 7.24 at 378.05 at 1 pm. The biggest decline, however, was posted by the Nasdaq composite of over-the-counter stocks, which plunged 13.36 to Turnover on the NYSE was exceptionally heavy at 136m shares by 1 pm. Declines outpaced rises by more than six to weight of the selling pressure. The market took its cue from overnight and early morning losses on foreign stock exchanges, particularly London, where US stocks ran into sellers before New York opened. Concern about the grim outlook for the US economy, and the absence of fresh policy initiatives to stimulate growth from the White House, also contributed to the selling. Some analysts also pointed out that dealers and specialist market-makers who were forced to buy unwanted stock during Friday's collapse took the opportunity to offload a portion of that inventory yesterday morning, after Monday's brief rebound.

Among individual stocks, leading computer issues were damaged by a downgrade from Mr Stephen Smith, analyst at broking house PaineWebber. Among those affected were IBM, down $1% to $95%, Compaq, down $1 at $24%, Digital Equipment, $1% lower at $61%, and Tandem Computers, down $% at $9%.

There were a few rare gains yesterday, including Salomon, up $1/4 at $281/4 on reports of major job cuts in its struggling investment banking and equities divisions, and Great Lakes Chemical, up $1 % at $100 % on stock is to be added to the S&P 500 index after the market closes this week. AT&T fell $1% to $35% after the telecommunications group told analysts to expect a big charge for costs of accounting for retiree benefits. The company, however, said the charge would be well below the $16bn originally rumoured. The news that McDonnell Douglas is close to selling a 40 per cent stake in its commerwanese company failed to help the aerospace group's shares, which fell $1% to $71%. The correction among overthe-counter stocks continued cial airline operations to a Taiunabated. Biotechnology stocks again bore the brunt of the selling, with Amgen $1% lower at $53%, MedImmune $4 % weaker at $38 %, Xoma $1 lower at $18, Immune Response down $2 at $35 %, and Centocor down $14 at $45%. Liposome Technology, which issued an additional 3m shares of its common stock at $9,375 yesterday, fell $% to $9%.

Canada

TORONTO almost matched Friday's fall at midday, the TSE 300 composite index dropping 37.2 to 3,513.4. Declines led advances by 313 to 125 in vol-

Thirteen of the TSE's 14 indices were weaker, with gold shares the lone exception. Among active stocks CAE Industries was steady at CS6, Nova Corp fell C$1/4 to C$71/4 and Telus Corp dropped C$% to C$14%.

In natural resources, Metall Mining was unchanged at C$10%, Hemlo Gold was up C$% at C$11% and American Barrick rose C$\% to C$29\%.

Most of region rebounds as Nikkei closes lower

Tokyo

HOPES OF a rebound after Monday's sharp decline were dashed yesterday, as share prices closed lower after a volatile session dominated by arbitrage-related trading, writes Emiko Terazono in Tokyo.

The Nikkei average lost 73.26 to end at the day's low of 23,326.86 after a high of 23,673.24. The market firmed in the morning on the overnight rally on Wall Street, but arbitrage-related selling pushed the index down in the afternoon. Volume remained low at 280m shares. In spite of the fall in the index, rises led declines by 644 to 296 with 177 issues unchanged. The Topix index picked up 2.95 to 1,773.60 but, index retreated 10.61 to L319.33. The spate of interim earnings announcements has sent jitters through the market. Many companies have announced downward revisions for the full year, with some manufacturers projecting double-digit declines in profits.

In addition, the time lag between last week's official discount rate cut and next week's reduction in interest rates for postal savings has enticed investors looking for better returns to offload their equity holdings, and shift funds into the 10-year postal deposits. Analysts noted heavy selling by investment trusts trying to move out of the stock market.

Finally, the new listing by Sony Music Entertainment, scheduled for the end of this week, is troubling investors. Some traders pointed out that the pre-listing auction for Sony Music shares was one of the worst in recent listings. They fear that an over-supply of new paper, in current conditions of sluggish demand, could undermine the market.

Large-capital issues were actively bought in the first half of the session, but buying failed to be sustained and some stocks lost ground on profittaking. Nippon Steel managed a gain of Y3 at Y376 but Mitsubishi Heavy Industries was off Y2 on balance at Y688. Due to concern over selling of large-capital shares by investment trusts and other institutional investors, some investors turned to speculative issues. Toyo Ink, the most active stock of the day, forged ahead Y68 to Y880 and Clarion rose Y70 to Y1.460.

on hopes of higher sales triggered by growing calls for Aids prevention. Okamoto Industries surged Y100 to Y1,020. and Japan Synthetic Rubber Y75 to Y690.

In Osaka, the OSE average shed 45.09 to 25,345.50 in volume of 43m shares. Some highpriced issues and speculative stocks were higher, but most investors remained cautious.

Although the leading Dutch companies have had a patchy year so far, market sentiment towards them is beginning to turn, encouraged by evidence that they are in better shape than insurers elsewhere in northern Europe.

Bourses split in reflection of US volatility

ONCE AGAIN, bourse performance split between markets which closed early, and were exposed only to Wall Street's Monday recovery, and those which reflected its accelerating decline in Tuesday morning trading, writes Our Markets Staff. PARIS continued to fall in the wake of Monday's interest rate rise and Wall Street's weakness. The CAC 40 index closed at 1.765.09, down 43.18 or 2.4 per cent, in turnover of FFr3bn after Monday's exceptionally heavy FFr3.8bn. In the oil sector, Elf Aquitaine was down FFr9 to FFr408 while Total dipped FFr28 to FF11,017. Among the smaller stocks, Sanofi dropped as low as FFr913 before closing FFr35 down at FFr940 with a relatively heavy 44,000 shares

AMSTERDAM concentrated on KLM which soared as high as Fl 43.80 in an initial reaction to reports that British Airawys was going to take it over. But it fell back to close only Fl 1.90 higher at F1 39.40 as the market discounted the story as an attempt by the trade unions to influence the talks between the two airlines.

Elsewhere, the market was generally weaker in the face of the fall on Wall Street. The CBS Tendency index fell 0.6 to 90.0. The publisher Elsevier closed 50 cents lower at Fl 96.90, after a high of Fl 98.70 as a buyer over the past four trading days stepped out of the market.

MILAN was led higher by Montedison which rose 3.7 per cent on optimism that the restructuring of its sugar and edible oil businesses would enhance earnings. The Comit index added 3.29 to 514.45 in turnover estimated at near Monday's L85bn. Montedison put on L46 to
